

STORY OF THE MONTH | PREPARE FOR POLITICAL CHANGES

The Netherlands has voted, and the political landscape is shifting once again. As coalition talks get underway, companies with cross-border ambitions are keeping a close watch. Changes in government priorities can have a ripple effect internationally; influencing trade agreements, market confidence, sustainability ambitions, and even how regulation is interpreted in cross-border operations. For Dutch entrepreneurs working in or with France, understanding these dynamics early can offer a valuable edge.

Policy shifts often set the direction for business. A stronger focus on green transition could accelerate opportunities in renewable energy, mobility, and sustainable manufacturing. Meanwhile, evolving tax frameworks, labor policies, or government incentives may reshape how investments flow between the two countries. In such an interconnected environment, insight into these developments is essential for long-term planning and partnership building.

This is precisely why the Netherlands France Chamber of Commerce, in collaboration with PwC Netherlands, is hosting an executive briefing at the Netherlands' Ambassador Residence in Paris. Taking place at a key moment in both economies' planning cycles, this invitation-only session for Gold and Orange NFCC members will provide context, analysis, and practical foresight for 2026.

For those eager to dig deeper into the current state of bilateral business relations, we also invite you to explore the inaugural Franco-Dutch Trade and Investment Barometer: an initiative by the Embassy of the Kingdom of the Netherlands in collaboration with NFCC, PwC Netherlands, ING, and SEO Amsterdam Economics. Released earlier this year as part of the 2025 France–Netherlands Economic Year, the Barometer offers valuable data and insights on the evolving economic partnership between our two countries. You can access it via the button below.

SECTOR SPECIFICS | SALES IN FRANCE

The NFCC team will be visiting the Salon des Maires et des Collectivités Locales in Paris this year. Following our visit last year, we look forward to exploring this major event, which showcases innovative solutions for local territories and provides opportunities for exchange and collaboration between elected officials and municipal teams. The fair highlights best practices, inspires reflection on public action, and offers insights into key sectors such as urban planning, environment, mobility, digital innovation, energy, culture, and social development. If you will also be attending, feel free to reach out; we would be happy to connect!
